4 READING Lost in London

Jake was in London for the weekend with his parents and his sister Emily.

'Remember: Be careful today,' said his dad before they went out.

'Yes, London is much bigger than Norwich,' said his Mum. 'So, stay together. Don't get lost.'

'Yes, mum, we know. We'll be careful,' answered Emily and Jake.

The first thing they did was go to Buckingham Palace. They enjoyed the Changing of the Guard ceremony and Jake took some pictures.

Suddenly, the guards on horses started to ride in their direction.

'Oh, they're coming down this street,' said Jake.

'We have to move.'

There were a lot of people and everyone started to walk at the same time, so it was very busy.

A moment later, when they looked back for her,

Jake and his parents couldn't find Emily.

'Emily? Emily!' The three of them called her name and looked for her, but she was gone. They tried to call her on the phone, but she didn't answer.

'I'm so worried,' said Dad.

'Me too,' said Mum.

Then Jake saw something. It was a blue scarf.

It was on the grass.

'Look!' he said and ran to pick it up.

'It's Emily's scarf. I think she went into this park,' he said and pointed to<sup>1</sup> a sign for St. James's Park.

'OK, I'll stay here – maybe she'll come back,' said his dad.

Jake and his mum went into the park and followed the path. There was a small building on the right with a little shop. People stood outside it to buy drinks and snacks.

'Excuse me,' said Jake to a woman. 'Have you seen this girl?' he asked and showed a picture of Emily.

'Oh, yes, I believe that I just saw her a few minutes ago. She went that way,' said the woman and pointed to the left.

'Thank you!' answered Jake. 'Come on, Mum, hurry!'

'Look Jake, I can see her over there at the Blue Bridge,' said his mum. 'Emily!' she called.

Emily turned around. 'Emily! We were so worried,' said her mum.

'I'm really sorry. I thought I had seen Prince William and I just wanted to get a little closer.'

'Oh, Emily! But I'm just happy that you're OK,' said her mum.
